Our Mission

To introduce students, who are pursuing a career in business or finance, to top global employers that are looking to fill internship, entry-level and graduate level positions, through the most innovative talent search in today's marketplace.

About the BAT

The Bloomberg Aptitude Test is an online, standardized test. There are 100 multiple choice questions covering 8 subject areas to assess a student's aptitude for careers in finance and business.

Upon completion of the BAT, student scores are anonymously posted into Bloomberg's Talent Search database which recruiters utilize to establish connections with top-scoring students in each section. Universities receive a complimentary University Smart Report assessing how their students scored, as compared to global and national averages. There is no cost for first time test takers and there is no cost for universities to host the BAT.
